Sights

A City Hall and Perlach Tower: The city hall that was built by Elias Holl between 1615 to 1620 is the landmark of the city and it is also said to be the most significant secular Renaissance building north of the Alps. The restored Golden Hall is famous for its magnificent, pompous portals, coffered ceiling and mural paintings. Open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. except when there are private events. The Perlach Tower next to City Hall offers a spectacular panoramic view of Augsburg. Open from May to October.

B C D The three magnificent fountains: From around 1600 in Maximilianstrasse – also known as “The Imperial Mile,” there are splendid fountain monuments and precious bronze sculptures: Augustus Fountain (2), Mercury Fountain (3) and Hercules Fountain (4).

E The cathedral: Romanesque and Gothic St. Mary’s Cathedral with impressive frescos, a Romanesque crypt, windows from the 12th century displaying the prophets as well as four panel paintings by Hans Holbein the Elder. Many finds from the Roman era to be seen on the square.

F The diocesan museum: The Diözesanmuseum, diocesan museum, (right next to the Dom) exhibits a vast number of art treasures including, for example, the bronze doors of the Augsburg cathedral from the 11th century and paintings and sculptures of the late Middle Ages.

G Mozart house: The house in which Leopold Mozart, the father of Wolfgang Amadé Mozart was born, is a house of the bourgeoisie of the 16th and 17th centuries. Today it is a Mozart memorial with a permanent exhibition and interesting changing exhibits (documents from the time of Mozart in Augsburg, on Leopold and Wolfgang Amadé and a Stein piano).

H St. Anna church: Formerly a Carmelite monastery, a Protestant church since 1525 (the so-called “Lutherstiege”). The tomb chapel of the Fugger family is regarded as the first Renaissance church building in Germany. It features valuable paintings by Lucas Cranach and the Goldsmith’s Chapel with 14th century frescos. Right next to the Annahof is the City Market, with its picturesque selection of flowers, fruit and vegetables, bread, cakes and pastries, meat, fish and lots more.

I Maximilian Museum: Patrician house, built in 1546. The painting of the facade was reconstructed according to old patterns. The museum presents interesting evidence of town history as well as a large exhibition of goldsmiths’ work and silverwork of famous Augsburg masters. Courtyard with café.

J The Synagogue: Built by Heinrich Lömpel and Fritz Landauer from 1914 to 1917 as cupola building with Art Nouveau furnishing. Moreover, it is home of the Museum of Jewish Culture.

K The Fugger City Palace: The residential and business house of Jakob Fugger was built from 1512 to 1515 and has charming and attractive inner courts (the Damenhof or Ladies’ Court) built in the architectural style of the Italian Renaissance. Access by Maximilianstrasse 36.

L Schaezler Palace: City residence of the banker Liebert von Liebenhofen with a richly furnished rococo banqueting hall (1765-1770), today Germany’s most important baroque gallery. Entrance to the State Gallery of Bavaria with paintings by the Old Masters such as Dürer, Holbein and Cranach.

M St. Ulrich’s churches: Catholic St. Ulrich’s church: a richly furnished late Gothic basilica built in the architectural styles of Renaissance and Baroque. Tomb of the diocesan saints Afra, Saint Ulrich and Simpert. Protestant St. Ulrich’s church (in the foreground): Impressive stucco ceiling with ornamental art from the Regency period.

N Augsburg Puppenkiste (Puppet Theater): “Die Kiste,” the museum of the Augsburg Puppet Theater, is found one floor above the theater in the Heilig-Geist-Spital, a former hospital now preserved as an historical monument. In addition to the display of the well-loved marionettes, the museum also presents the history of the theater.

O Roman Museum: Two-nave hall church of the former St. Magdalene monastery. Features a multitude of prehistoric exhibits and interesting finds from the Roman Empire.

P The “Fuggerei”: Founded in 1521 by Jakob Fugger the Rich for industrious, innocently impoverished Augsburg citizens of Roman Catholic faith. The world’s oldest social housing: it encompasses 67 houses with 140 council flats. The annual rent is 1 Rhenish gulden (an equivalent of 1 euro). In the Fuggerei museum original furnishings are exhibited.

Q Brecht house: House where Bert Brecht was born in 1898. A typical craftsman’s house located on a canal of the river Lech. Today it harbors the Bert Brecht Memorial.

R Art museum “Walter” at the “Glas-Palace”: The “Glas-Palace,” an industrial monument, made of iron, concrete and glass, now accommodates the art museum “Walter” with more than 600 exhibits of modern art. Further exhibits can be found at the H2 Center for Contemporary Arts and the State Gallery of Modern Art.

S State Museum of Textiles and Textile Industry (tim): In one of Bavaria’s first factories, “tim” documents the once European-wide significance of the industrial city of Augsburg using machines, samples and a “catwalk of fashion history.” One hundred years ago approximately 30,000 people worked in the spinning mills, weaving mills and dye works of this German “Manchester.”

Fugger Tour

The tour “Following the Footsteps of the Fuggers” leads to 15 information boards commemorating the great Swabian family. These signs are located at various stations throughout the historical city center. This tour can be taken completely or in part on foot. It leads to sights of interest such as the Fuggerei and the Fugger chapel in St. Anna, the Fugger monument and the Fugger houses, the Dom, the Ulrich basilica, City Hall and the Roman Museum. The information boards are in German, English and Italian and each refers to the next sight of interest. In addition a “mobile audio guide” is offered for each station.

The signposting is a co-operation of the city of Augsburg, Regio Augsburg Tourismus GmbH and the Fürstlich und Gräfllich Fuggerschen Stiftungen.
